

Ike Visions Good Year But Warns Against Inflation

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) President Eisenhower reported to Congress today that a record 1956 prosperity should continue into this year. But he cautioned that more inflation may ride along with it.

In the last of his three major annual messages, the economic report, Eisenhower stressed for the third time in as many weeks his strong opposition to tax cuts and a sober appeal for restraint in wage boosts.

He listed 38 laws he wants from the 85th Congress. They include prompt federal aid for such construction, more teeth in the anti-monopoly and anti-merger laws, and more help for small firms caught in the credit squeeze.

The nation's total output of goods and services reached a record 412 billion dollars last year, and for the final quarter hit a peak annual rate of 24 billions, Eisenhower reported, forecasting continued good times.

But his basic theme was an appeal to industry and labor unions to join the government in blocking the leapfrog advance of business costs and consumer prices.

The figures Eisenhower cited showed that the country achieved a spectacular 21½-billion-dollar advance last year in the annual rate of production, but he said that half the gain merely reflected price increases.

The climb in prices "may not have run its course," he said, "it represents one of the 'uncertainties and problems' which cloud the economic future."

Eisenhower suggested strongly that he thinks the government is doing all it can do to curb price pressures, short of heavy-handed restraints that would regiment the economy and invite a recession.

Therefore, he said: "Business and labor leadership have the responsibility to reach agreements on wages and other labor benefits that are fair to the rest of the community as well as to those persons immediately involved."

Quick Okay Seen on Middle East Measure

By LEWIS GULLICK

WASHINGTON (AP) Two senior members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee announced today they have "no amendments" to offer to the Eisenhower Middle East resolution.

Chairman Gordon (R-Ill.) and Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) spoke as the committee gathered to consider possible changes in President Eisenhower's plan for opposing Communist expansion in the troubled Middle East.

The House group was expected to come to a final vote soon, perhaps tomorrow, in an effort to have the resolution ready for House action next week.

But some committee members said they would like to see some changes. One might be a limit on the effective time of the resolution. It now has no terminal date.

In the Senate, Chairman Humphrey (D-Minn.) of the Foreign Relations subcommittee on disarmament yielded the right of way to the Eisenhower resolution by postponing hearings originally slated to resume today. The full committee takes up the Middle East plan again tomorrow with further questioning of Secretary of State Dulles.

The Senate timetable makes it almost certain that the resolution will not clear Congress by the end of January, the date named by Dulles in urgent pleas to meet what he says is a Middle East crisis.

CEREMONY DELAYED—A heavy rain has forced the postponement of groundbreaking ceremonies scheduled today at the site of the Clary Corp. plant. Company officials said the event would be held Monday. About 4,000 persons were expected to take part in the ceremonies.

Tells of Brighter Side of Teaching

Th brighter side of the school teaching profession in Arkansas and elsewhere was brought out in talks before Hope Kiwanis club Tuesday by Mrs. P. L. Perkins and three of her students who are members of the Future Teachers Association of Hope High School.

Mrs. Perkins, a teacher for 34 years, spoke briefly and then introduced Marla Bowden, Rowena Rowe and Charlene Horton, who told of their desire, their faith and the challenge of the school teaching profession.

Each expressed a desire to help people, to help prepare young Americans for a better life, a better Arkansas and a better and brighter future.

The program was arranged by Kiwanian Frank Douglas. Guests of the club included Guy Dunn, past Lt.-Gov. of this Kiwanis district, of El Dorado; Tom Ross of Fort Smith; Rev. S. A. Whitlow, J. T. Bowden and Sam Dameron of Hope.

House Passes Driver's License Increase to $2

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas House today passed by a vote of 85-8 a bill sponsored by Gov. Orval Faubus to increase the driver's license fee from $1 to $2 a year.

The vote was the first in either house on an administration measure and was one of the first on any measure since the session opened last week.

The bill was designed to permit employment of additional state policemen.

The House voted after a brief explanation by Rep. Carroll C. Hollensworth of Bradley County, who introduced the measure, and without any debate.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill to set up minimum salaries for public school teachers was introduced into the Arkansas House today by Rep. Ben. Bynum of Chicot County.

The measure would require that 90 per cent of any increase in state funds made available this year, be used exclusively for payment of classroom teachers.

The minimum would range from $1,500 a year for any teacher who had less than 60 semester hours of college work through $2,700 for a holder of a bachelor's degree, up to $3,000 for a holder of a master's degree.

Reps. Knox Nelson and Carl Purcell of Jefferson County introduced a bill to permit the state Public Service Commission to force a railroad to add passenger service or to make changes in passenger

New Firm Organized in Hope to Market Eggs

A new company has been formed at Hope. The name of the company is Southland Farms, Inc. It will be engaged in the production, processing and marketing of eating eggs.

President of the new company is Freda Roth Greenan Vice President is Bill S. Watson; and Secretary-Treasurer is John Randolph.

According to Mrs. Greenan, Southland Farms, Inc. has been formed to carry out a commercial egg program recently announced by Corn Belt Hatcheries of Hope. Under this program Southland Farms will work with qualified farmers in Southwest Arkansas in the commercial production of eggs.

The farmers will furnish buildings, equipment, labor, litter and utilities. Southland Farms, Inc. will furnish Hy-Line chickens at day old; all feed, remedies and vaccines. The farmer will be paid for each egg produced regardless of markets or feed costs.

Under this program Southland Farms will own the chickens and the eggs. Egg markets, egg marketing methods and feed prices will be the concern of the company rather than the farmer. The farmer will be paid for the use of his buildings, equipment and labor according to the actual eggs produced.

It is the plan of Southland Farms, Inc. and Corn Belt Hatcheries to put out 100,000 laying birds in 1957. According to Mrs. Greenan these birds will produce between twelve and fourteen hundred cases of eggs weekly. Present plans are to process and package these eggs for distribution in large cities such as Dallas, Ft. Worth and Houston.

Complete details of this program are available at Corn Belt Hatcheries in Hope or at most local feed dealers. Plans and specifications for laying houses and equipment are also available. To qualify a farmer must be able to provide facilities for at least 1,200 laying hens and be willing to care for the chickens according to the instructions of the egg company.

El Dorado Firms Quit Gas Fight—Ten El Dorado laundries and dry cleaners have dropped their opposition to the proposed new 3X contracts for sale of gas by Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., to small and medium industrial users.

The firms were represented as protesters against the preferential-type contracts at a hearing before the Public Service Commission last month.

They sought, and were granted, PSC permission yesterday to withdraw as intervenors against approval of the proposed contracts.

Some other industrial users, supported by a group of municipalities, still oppose ratification of the agreements and will be heard by the commission in April.

If Ark-La and these industries already signing are upheld by PSC, the holder of a 3X contract will enjoy a less interruptible type of service than that of a present 3A contract.

The 3X user will pay for this preferred service through a higher charge for gas.

The Arkansas Gazette said the El Dorado firms withdrew from the case on advice of their attorney, State Senator Marshall Shackleford, Jr., of El Dorado.

The Gazette quoted Shackleford as saying he had entered the case knowing little about the gas companies.

Tanker Plane, 7 Aboard, Is Missing—WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) The Air Force early today reported a KC97 refueling tanker missing with seven men aboard.

An officer at Westover Air Force Base said the plane was long overdue on a refueling training mission from Westover to Griffiss Air Force Base near Utica, N.Y.

The plane left Westover at 1:30 p. m. yesterday and was last reported at 8 last night in the vicinity of Griffiss abn. The Air Force said the plane was experiencing radio difficulty at that time.

The plane had taken off with enough fuel for 12 hours of flying. Names of those aboard were withheld by the Air Force.

UN to Hear Details of Israel Plans—By TOM HOGE UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld was slated to hear details today of Israel's proposal that she govern the disputed Gaza Strip under U.N. surveillance.

Israel Ambassador Abba Eban was expected to outline to Hammarskjöld the plan under which Israel's forces would pull out of the strip, but Israel authorities would stay behind to handle the social and civil administration.

Regardless of Hammarskjöld's reaction, Egypt and the Arab States were certain to oppose the proposal. The Arabs demand the return of Gaza to Egypt, which occupied it from the Palestine War until the Israeli invasion in October.

The United States has suggested that the U. N. Emergency Force occupy the coastal strip, pecked with Palestine Arab refugees until a settlement between Israel and Egypt.

A major U.N. debate shaped up, meanwhile, on the entire scope and future of the U.N. police force. It was expected to begin in the General Assembly Monday with the Soviet bloc and Arab states opposing Western proposals to keep U.N. troops in Gaza and along the Sinai Desert coast of the Gulf of Aqaba, where Israeli forces also are still holding out.

The Assembly last weekend called on Israel to get out of all territory she occupied during the invasion of Egypt and asked Hammarskjöld to report Israeli compliance by Friday. Israel announced yesterday she had withdrawn from everything but the Gaza Strip and the Sharm el Sheikh area, the Aqaba coast from which Egyptian guns kept Israeli shipping out of the gulf.

District Farm Folks Discuss Aims, Problems

State agricultural issues affecting farmers in Southwest Arkansas were presented to farm leaders here Tuesday in a district meeting preparatory to the 1957 membership drive of Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation.

James L. Mason, Farm Bureau director of public relations, told the 80 persons attending the meeting at City Hall that taxation was one of the principal issues facing the current legislative session. He added that farmers recognize the needs for additional state services and that tax measures must be instituted to provide revenue for them.

Representing Hempstead County were: Ned Purdie, members of the Farm Bureau board of directors, who presided; W. Y. Jackson, Bill Schooley, Raymond Peace, Cecil Bittle, County Farm Bureau President N. B. Coleman, Gene Bruick, J. W. Reilly, James Burke, Jesse C. Burke, Richard B. Arnold, Monroe Kent, Horace Samuel, Fred Glanton, Ned Ray Purdie, Charles Wylie, County Agent Oliver L. Adams and Associate Agent Wade Benefield. Mr. Wylie is membership chairman.

Legislative measures to be introduced, according to Mr. Mason, include:

1. A 3.5 butterfat content requirement for milk to be designated Grade A, with all milk offered for sale to be labeled for butterfat content.

2. Sale barn licensing for sanitation and preservation of cattle quality at sale yards.

3. A voluntary brandng law which would require registration of brands and maintenance of brand records by sales barns.

4. Two brucellosis control proposals; one for compulsory calf-hood vaccination and the second to provide that when owners of 75 per cent of the cattle in a county desire eradication of the disease they would obtain the cooperation of agriculture agencies in a program toward that objective.

Mr. Mason said that proposed water conservation legislation drawn up by the Arkansas Water Study Commission fulfills two requirements that farmers insisted upon: Protection of vested rights for water use; and provisions for local control.

The need for a strong farmer organization was cited by Kenneth Bates of Little Rock, associate director of the Agriculture Extension Service.

Mr. Bates commented that farm units have become larger and more efficient than they were a few years ago.

Other speakers were: E. A. Hansen, district agent for the Extension Service; H. T. Baber of Arkadelphia, district Farm Bureau director of organization; and Robert W. Owens of Little Rock, manager for Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company of Arkansas.

Robert Garrett of Hope was elected to the state Farm Bureau commodity committee on field crops. Also chosen were: Vess Godley of Magnolia and Charles Harrison of El Dorado, Livestock; A. F. Cox of Texarkana, Dairy; O. F. Lullmer of Locksburg and Dale Booth of El Dorado, Poultry; Henry Gilbert of Center Point, Fruits and Vegetables; and Ray Sikes of Allene, Thomas Silver of Boscaw and C. C. Adams of Camden, Forestry.

Hearing Is Set Monday on 3% Sales Tax Bill

State Senator Gene Lee of Prescott telephoned The Star this morning to verify reports that there will be a public hearing on the proposal to increase the state sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent at 7:30 p. m. Monday, January 28, in Hotel Marion at Little Rock.

The actual hearing will cover three tax bills introduced in the Arkansas Senate by Senator J. Lee Bearden of Leachville, Mississippi county. The Bearden measures are:

1. SB 32 to increase the sales tax to 3 per cent, with an estimated additional yield of 15 millions yearly.

2. SB 33 to lower state income tax exemptions, with an expected increase in annual revenue of 0 millions.

3. SB 34 to increase severance taxes approximately one million dollars.

The focal point of opposition to the tax-increase program is expected to be the bill to raise the sales tax — with the sharpest opposition appearing in southwest Arkansas which is close to Texas, which has neither sales tax nor state income tax.

Formal declarations against the 3 per cent sales tax bill have been made by the cities of Hope, Ashdown, and Nashville in this area — and a large delegation is expected to attend the public hearing on this bill at 7:30 next Monday night in the Hotel Marion, Little Rock.

Grace Gives Birth to Baby Girl

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Grace Kelly, Princess of Monaco, gave birth at 9:27 a. m. today to a dark-haired, blue-eyed daughter weighing 8 pounds 2 ounces.

"The delivery went very quickly and in a normal way," said a medical bulletin signed by three attending physicians.

"Her Highness the Princess and the child are doing very well." The bulletin added that the baby was "perfectly constituted."

A booming 21-gun salute announced the arrival of Princess Caroline Louise Marguerite, first child of reigning Prince Rainier III and the 26-year-old Hollywood movie star he married last April 18-19.

Princess Caroline — as she will be called — will succeed her father on the throne of the 367-acre Riviera principality unless a son is born later to the royal couple. The 33-year-old Prince himself reportedly wanted a girl.

Monacans were jubilant at the baby's birth. If Rainier dies without an heir, Monaco becomes a French protectorate and its 4,000 citizens become subject to France's high taxes and military draft. Monaco's taxes now are negligible and its military service nil.

Nashville C. C. Opposes Hike in Sales Tax

NASHVILLE — Chamber of Commerce last week joined the opposition to increasing the state sales tax from two to three cents.

The General Assembly Monday was expected to begin the legislative battle for the tax increase.

Board members of the Chamber adopted a resolution to express its opposition to the tax. Letters opposing the increase were to be sent to governor Orval Faubus, State Senator Roy Riales of Meni, and to the representatives of counties from South Arkansas, including Don Steel of Howard County. Thus Nashville joined with Ashdown, Hope, DeQueen and other cities and towns of South Arkansas, cities that compete with tax-free Texas sales.

Homor Boyerley, chairman of the finance committee which worked out the city's adopted budget outlined the group's recommendations. The committee favors a sewer maintenance tax to make up an estimated $20,000 deficit in the budget over the estimated income.

The committee suggested a monthly fee based on water bills in the least water using months of November, December and January. Take the bills of the three months, get an average and fix the fee between 40 and 50 per cent.

An example: If your three months average bill is $1.50, your monthly sewer fee would be $0.75 cents. The committee proposed a maximum of $3.00 per month for any one establishment.

It was also reported that a check was run on 40 meters in four sections of the city and the monthly bills averaged $1.96. On this basis the average sewer tax would be 98 cents per month.

Citizens present offered many suggestions such as contracting the garbage collection, a privilege tax, etc. But the main discussion involved the actual need of more revenue and the method of equalizing the amount.

The discussion ended when several merchants agreed to call a meeting of all merchants to discuss the possibility of a privilege tax. The Council then called a meeting of January 29.

In other action the council voted not to accept additional pay for special meetings okayed an expenditure of $25 to have a list of the county auto license plates made up.

Ike Is Simply Not a Fiery Leader

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Anyone who has expected President Eisenhower's leadership to be more fiery, forceful and tough in dealing with Congress these next four years is likely to be disappointed.

In his first two years in office Eisenhower sometimes acted like a man who thought the President's job was merely to consult with Congress. In the following two he showed more signs of pushing for the ideas he wanted approved.

But in his whole first term Eisenhower can hardly be said to have fought very vigorously for much that he proposed, at least on domestic problems. He did fight harder on foreign affairs.

Nevertheless, he received a lot of cooperation from the lawmakers and, judging from last November's election, the broadest kind of public approval for what he did and the way he acted.

Apparently he has no intention of changing. He said as much at his news conference Nov. 14 after getting an overwhelming re-election pat on the back. On that day he indicated the course he'd follow, which was the course he had followed.

He said he would try to get things done through persuasion, since he is not one of the desk-pounding type who likes to stick out his paw and try to look as if he is bossing the works.

That probably accounts for the lack of aggressiveness and steam in his messages to date this year.

Outlining his program for the days ahead. A possible exception was his call for a new program for the Middle East.

So far in 1957 he has offered no ideas—again with the exception of

Disarmament Agreement No Nearer

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The current U. N. disarmament debate went into its final stage today amid signs Russia would hold out for her own demand for an immediate ban on all nuclear weapons tests.

Soviet bloc speakers gave increasing evidence of this as the U. N.'s top Political Committee prepared to hear final summaries from the United States and Russia. France was to be the last speaker.

In the hope of getting at least surface unanimity, the Western Big Three and a large group of other members were preparing a resolution which contained no new proposals. It merely called for new arms talks in the U. N.'s five-nation subcommittee—the Big Four and Canada.

The big Western Powers were reported seeking Soviet agreement on this resolution.

The committee has before it three specific proposals aimed at controlling nuclear blasts. Their sponsors admitted growing alarm over the effects of continued experimental explosions on a big scale.

The proposals were introduced shortly after the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission reported that the Russians had touched off at least their fifth nuclear blast since August.

The proposal by Canada, Japan and Norway for a system of advance registration with the U. N. of all nuclear blasts drew fire from Communist Czechoslovakia and White Russia. They declared it was too little to do any good and would only impede agreement on the total of banning nuclear tests altogether.

The latter have been very mild in their comments on Eisenhower's message. Maybe Truman was shown much fight these past four years to start them fighting as the opposition party. They haven't years, either.

Tibet Lama May Not Want to Go Home

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Many diplomats and Indians are wondering if the Dalai Lama, spiritual ruler of Tibet, is having second thoughts about returning to his Communist-occupied homeland.

Delays in ending his Indian visit have given rise to rumors that he is.

The Dalai Lama, 22, and the 19-year-old Panchen Lama, No. 2 man in the Tibetan hierarchy, came to India Nov. 23 to take part in Indian ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the new constitution.

Americans Play Bridge Estimated 40 Million

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Experts estimate the bridge-playing population of the United States at around 40 million, give or take a few million.

Every hour on the hour, somewhere, Americans are playing, kibitzing, holding post-mortems, taking lessons, and telling stories of the slam that got away. We ought to be good at the game.

Yet the Bermuda Bowl symbol of the world's bridge championship, has just gone over to Italy. Six Italian internationalists "clobbered" a top-flight American team by 10,001 points in 224 hands—a shocking margin.

Viewing with alarm, I called my old pal, Peter Leventritt, a member of the American team, to ask how this could come to pass.

"Perfectly simple," he said. "They outbig us, outplayed us, and outdefended us." No man to varnish facts, he.

The Italians used three separate systems, two of which can be understood by any nuclear physicist or a good clairvoyant. Peter said they used some other curlicues in their offense as well.

But apart from these refinements, the basic reason for their success was simply momma-and-poppa bridge, polished to perfection.

"Those six play every day, and always together. No stakes, just for love of the game. They practice constantly together. So each one comes to know exactly what the other means by any given call."

"The American team? Shucks we may not even see each other three times in a year."

It's almost a truism that a competent husband-and-wife team can give two experts, who haven't played regularly together, a real tussle at bridge. That is, as summing momma and poppa are in rapport, generally.

Leventritt is not one of those who downgrades the ability of women players.

Mrs. Helen Sobel, who played against the Italians, was the first woman from any nation to compete in the international tournament. "She's as good as any man alive," he said.

Ever wonder how it feels to play in such a contest?

"Probably hundreds of thousands of kibitzers watched this one; it was televised. And the two big hotel rooms were packed with spectators, watching the hands on a mirror arrangement outside sound-proof booths. Kind of fright-couldn't unwind at home. "I kept replaying the hands while I was asleep," he said. "Then I'd sit bolt up right, wondering, 'Now why did I do that?'"

Yep, the experts made common, ladies - afternoon-ten, boners too, four of them - a revoke, a lead out of turn, and two wrong cards pulled. Each team erred twice.

Once, the door of the booth accidentally came open a few inches. Leventritt and his partner arrived at a small slam. As they bid it, he said, he heard a roar go up from the crowd—indicating they had surpassed the corresponding Italian bid, in the other booth, on this hand.

"One of the Italians leaned over and congratulated us," he said. Making it, was something else again. Yes, the finesse worked.

A bit of unscheduled drama resulted from televising the proceedings, he said.

One night, Leventritt and his partner reached a contract in no trump that seemed headed for certain disaster. They had no stumper in spades. As the play started, the TV time ended and the cameras went elsewhere.

"In two seconds," he said, "the switchboards at the station and the hotel were jammed. People kept calling to ask if we made it."

Well, did they? Lady Luck stepped in at that point. The Italians erred on the opening lead. It was one of the few times the momma-and-poppa's stern failed.

Abolition of Police Unions Urged

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A bill to abolish policemen's unions in Arkansas was recommended for passage last night by a House committee.

Rep. Jim Coates Jr. of Pulaski County, author of the measure, said it would "very simply abolish the policemen's union at Little Rock."

Coates said the union had been involved in a "stink" resulting from violence against two Little Rock companies who were strike-bound in 1955. The firms were Capitol Transit Co. and Terry Dairy Products Co.

Property of the companies was damaged by dynamiting, bombing and gunfire.

Coates referred to what he called an apparent split loyalty on the part of the Little Rock police force in handling the cases. He cited a donation of $500 from the Little Rock policemen's union to striking bus drivers.

Wayne B. Glenn, executive secretary of the Arkansas Labor Council, told the House Committee on Cities and Towns the Little Rock union was being assailed on "assumption and supposition." Woods said there was no evidence that union members took part in strike violence.

Says Maner Case Too Hot to Handle

LITTLE ROCK, (UP)—A member of the Arkansas House indicated today that the case of Saline Circuit Judge Ernest Maner was too hot for the legislature to handle.

The Supreme Court adopted a report from the bar rules committee yesterday criticizing Maner for accepting contributions from a Benton gambler. It said the state constitution gives the legislature the power to determine the fitness of a circuit judge to serve.

Rep. Virgil Fletcher of Saline county said that if the legislature must act in the case, the House will try and refer it back to the Supreme Court. Fletcher said if the House is "pressured" into any action at all he will introduce a resolution asking the speaker to set up a committee to study the case.

He indicated that if the committee took the bar rules report to be true, the House then would be asked to refer the case back to high court for action.

Fletcher said he did not believe any representative would be willing to introduce a resolution chiding Maner's impeachment.

"I certainly would not, he's a personal friend of mine," Fletcher said.

Fletcher said the decision should be up to the Supreme Court because the judge is a member of the profession, and any determination of ethics and misconduct involved should come from the court. He suggested that even though the Supreme Court cannot bring impeachment proceedings, it could disbar Maner, disqualifying him from office. Disbarment would have the same effect as impeachment, Fletcher said.

Damage to Truck Crops in Florida

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Torrntial rains which fell in this area Monday night caused heavy damage to truck crops.

Wayne Collier, assistant agricultural agent, estimated the damage at 15 million dollars. He said 65 to 85 per cent of the crops on 25,000 acres would be harmed.

Much of the flat land was under water and the soil was soupy even when most of the water was

Ike Back to Business in Washington

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's back to business as usual today for President Eisenhower after a brilliant inaugural celebration, crowned by appearance at four gay, diamond-studded galas honoring the start of his second term.

They kept him on the go until nearly 1 a.m. — and he seemed to enjoy every minute.

With his lady on his arm, he left the White House soon after 10 o'clock, started at the Washington Armory and showed up at three hotels in the next 2½ hours.

Dance orchestras played, colors were trooped, thousands of people promenaded past the presidential boxes, and celebrated singers gave their all with everything from the National Anthem to "The Blue Danube" and "Mr. Wonderful."

The President was a picture of pumped away.

Most of the rain fell from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday. Estimates of the amounts ranged as high as 18 inches.

West Palm Beach recorded 6.38 inches at the airport, and some minor flooding was reported there.

Ortiz, Rogers Battle Tonight

CHICAGO (The International Boxing Club's youth movement unfolds on national television tonight when a pair of 20-year-old lightweight, Carlos Ortiz of New York and Chicago's Bobby Rogers, meet in a 10-round bout.

It is Rogers' first TV appearance. Ortiz is well known in the East after registering 19 straight victories as a pro, following 27 successive triumphs in the amateur ranks.

Mainly because of his record, Ortiz rules a 2-1 favorite, but Chicago ring experts wouldn't be surprised to see an upset by Rogers, a $60-per-week laundry worker who has a vicious, short right-hand punch.

Rogers has won 10 fights, lost 2 and drew in 2, since turning pro shortly after taking the 1955 Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight title. He is credited with seven knockouts.

He won his TV main event chance with recent victories over Andy Axel of Pittsburgh and Dave Moore, the 1952 Olympic featherweight champ.

ABC will telecast at 10 p.m. EST.

Guidance Supervisor

Guest of PTA

The Yerger-Shover PTA met in regular session Monday evening, January 21, with the President, Mr. Burton, presiding.

The program Committee, of which Mrs. E. S. Cooper is Chairman, presented a very interesting and informative program.

Special feature of this program was a lecture given by Mr. Hugh Lovette of Little Rock, Ark., Supervisor of Guidance Services. Approximately fifty parents, patrons, and teachers were recipients of this helpful information given by this dynamic speaker, and this report for a better understanding of the Guidance Program, is definitely the result.

In his lecture, Mr. Lovette told us that the Guidance Program is fifty years old. It was started as the Boy's Vocational Guidance Program in Boston, Mass., in 1909, by Frank Parsons. It was designed to help boys find out some of their interests, abilities, aptitudes, and to help them select a field of work, and train themselves for the same.

He said, "The program is operating in 44 states in the U. S. A., and 3 Territories. From 1942-1946 it operated without aid of Federal Funds. It was introduced in Arkansas by Dr. Dolph Camp, and began operation with 5% of the funds from Federal Aid; this percentage has, however been increased, and is used in part, to supplement salaries for Guidance Counselors. The biggest problem of the program is, a shortage of trained Counselors. What is the guidance program? Six areas of service must be covered. 1. Accumulating records for each pupil, including home and family background; Test results; mental, personality test results—reading tests, autobiography records—counseling notes—facts to better understand the student. 2. Information about the world of work possibilities; facts about self and the world of work; compare the two, and discover what he is best suited for. 3. Counseling, the heart of the Guidance Program. Guidance, and Counseling are two different things. Guidance is the process by which he is helped in finding out what he is best suited for; Counseling is designed to help the student make better plans and wiser choices. 4. Placement, to help the student find part-time jobs while in high school, jobs in college, placement in the Armed service, and employment after graduation. 5. Follow-up: Keep in touch with student to find out if progress has been made as a result of the program. 6. Three-Way Conferences

Exams Over, Top Fives Swing Back Into Action

By DON WEISS
Of The Associated Press

Don't get impatient. Only three more days and the big boys of college basketball will be back at it again.

North Carolina, Kansas, Iowa State virtually every major school in the country—have been spending the last few days testing their classroom talents in mid-term examinations. Yes, Virginia, basketball players take them too.

Until they're over and scheduling picks up, there will be the type of limited fare offered around the country last night.

Only six of the games played could be considered major and of the combatants, only one—Cincinnati—had made any sort of an impression this season.

The Golden Griffins, as they're called by the homefolks in Buffalo, won their 13th game in 15 starts —pulling ahead in the closing minutes to defeat tough St. Bonaventure, 70-63 at Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium. Hank Nowak had 25 points for Canisius, ranked 14th in this week's Associated Press poll.

Georgia Tech defeated Auburn 81-74. St. Francis of Brooklyn routed Siena 69-50, Idaho whipped Washington State 68-57, Memphis State downed Tennessee Tech 89-73, and Little St. Thomas of Minnesota surprised Marquette, 69-63.

Lehigh Cohen and Bud Blomker combined for 43 points in Tech's victory over Auburn. Cohen had 23, Blomker 20. The game, incidentally, did not count in the Southern Conference race — although both are members. Only one Tech-Auburn game counts and the "official" one has been designated for next month in Atlanta.

A DOCTOR for BLUE JAY COVE

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT
Copyright 1955 by Elizabeth Seifert. Published by MFA Service.

So was Cass shocked. To think that upon such wisps and shreds she would make a monstrous mistake.

She actually pushed those two young folk, sensing their romantic attraction for each other—all color drained from Cass's face. "I shouldn't have meddled," she said contritely. "I had no right."

"Indeed you didn't," agreed Marcy pleasantly. "For one thing, I was quite capable of getting that man for myself. Jake's a nice, clean-cut American man. A girl wouldn't want a girl couldn't have—better than that!"

Numbly, Cass stared at Marcy. "But, didn't you think that the 'Was like Jake? No, I didn't. Cass, I thought I loved him. You see, then I didn't know what love was like. Lee was a charmer—in lots of ways he reminds me of Matt Knapp."

"And then," Cass prompted.

"And then," said Marcy briskly, "I hadn't been in Germany six weeks when his real wife turned up, complete with a baby eight months old. Lee was relieved of his commission, of course, and separated from the Army. That put him into the jurisdiction of the civil courts, and I guess he'll go to several jails at once—when they find him."

"Oh, heavens!" gasped her sister-in-law. "And all we did was try to make you go back to Powers. Why didn't you tell us?"

"I meant to. I meant to tell Alex, at least. Then I came home and found out about Aunt Cordy, and I saw the guy was taking that so hard, I decided not to do anything to shock him further."

"But you needed us..."

"It would have been a shock to him, Cass. It will be, when he knows. It took me a while to realize what had happened. That's why as I was—I married a guy, but wasn't married at all. For a couple of weeks there I was sick. Really sick, and the doctor called it shock. I was numb — I didn't feel anything. That was bad, but it was worse when feeling returned, as it slowly began to. It—that was awful, Cass."

Jake's voice called to them from the front porch. "I'm leaving, Marcy. Be back tomorrow."

"I'm going with him tomorrow," said Marcy, rising. "And it's going to be right, Cass. He'll talk to you, and Alex, and you'll not know what he's right. You'll know how lucky I am, after Lee, that a man like Jake has found me, and wants me. I can't believe it myself, but, oh, I hope it is true!"

Cass went to her, impulsively, warmly.

"A man like Jake," she put her thoughts into words. "Is worth a million Lees. It takes that one man in a million to understand a woman's love—so, yes, go with him, Marcy — and stay with him. I know you'll be happy."

That day became warm and muggy after the big rain, and as the hours dropped away, word began to seep through the town that Dr. Marcy had left his wife.

Alex mentioned the talk when he came home late in the afternoon. And of course the matter of Lenoire.

Almost as an anticlimax, she felt, Cass told him, briefly, that Jake was not Leo Powers—and went on to mention the annulment of Marcy's marriage. "She's been through a lot, poor girl," she concluded.

"Yes, Jake came to see me this morning, at the hospital. I—I've had a busy day, Cass."

The phone rang, and he went to answer. Doctor-fashion, Alex conducted a five minute telephone conversation without letting listeners on his side of the wire do more than guess a he caller and his business.

The caller was Mike Benninger underaker, and he was asking Dr. Ward to be a pall bearer for Lenoire Black.

"I've been trying to locate her family," he explained. "Can't seem to get any trace of 'em. Called the hospital, and the desk couldn't locate anything from their files. You wouldn't know, Alex?"

Only what's in her file," said Alex.

"The houseboat she lived in got swamped," Mike continued. "I hired a man to dive down and see what he could find. Seemed there wasn't much of anything in the place—or what there was musta washed away."

"What about her car?"

"Drivers' license and registration, issued in Kansas City. Not another thing," Mike was concluding. "You will serve, won't you, Doc? You could plan to get here about 10:45 and—"

"I'm sorry," said Alex. "But the answer is 'No.'"

He put the phone down, picked up his pipe, and tamping it with his finger, he went back to his mother's room.

"What happened?" Cass asked him. "You look upset."

"I'm not, really. And he briefly stated Mike's request and his own refusal."

Cordy lay glaring. "Wait!" she screamed. "Wait!"

"She was extremely fond of Lenoire," Cass's voice came strangely cool against the noise of Aunt Cordy's screaming rage. "I believe you should have agreed to serve, Alex."

"I don't want to," he told her. "I never do want to serve as pall bearer, but in this case, I never liked Lenoire."

"I was thinking of the town's opinion of her, Alex," she explained. "She was greatly admired. I am sure that asking you to serve as a pall bearer for her was meant to honor you."

"Well, I don't want their honor, either."

Diving Champ To Be Honored at Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Mrs. Pat McCormick, who dives, and Mickey Mantle, who swings a mighty baseball bat, will be honored by the Fraternal Order of Eagles tonight as the top female and male athletes of 1956.

They will receive the Frederick C. Miller memorial trophies at the second annual awards banquet.

They were selected for the honors by sportswriters and broadcasters in a poll conducted by the Associated Press.

Mrs. McCormick won top Olympic diving honors for the United States in both the 1952 and 1956 games. The 26-year-old Californian announced her retirement following the 1956 games at Melbourne. She is the mother of a 10-month-old son.

Mantle, 25, was the American League's most valuable player last season. He paced the circuit with a .353 batting average, 52 home runs and 130 runs batted in for the New York Yankees.

Mantle, of Commerce, Okla., arrived yesterday and in an interview said "it would be a miracle" if he is able to repeat his accomplishments in 1957.

"I only beat out Ted Williams by three percentage points for the batting title," he pointed out, "and got only three more RBIs than Al Kaline."

It was suggested that the blond slugger was still young and might get stronger and better.

"He's grined," and said, "yeah, what about Kaline? Doesn't he figure to improve. And Williams—he won't have to get any better. That guy's just about perfect and should hit around .350 again."

Mrs. McCormick also arrived yesterday and reviewed the last Olympics and said that athletes that participated are not in favor of "tabulating unofficial team totals."

"All the athletes felt bad about the way the newspapers put country against country against country," she said in a short talk before a joint meeting of the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, men's and women's professional journalism fraternities.

"We as athletes don't think that way about it," she said. As for her own opinion, she said she felt there should be no scoring on a team basis.

Man Dies But Saves Wife, Small Son

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A young father perished yesterday in his blazing second-floor apartment after aiding his wife and infant son to leap safely into the arms of bystanders.

The body of Vernon Leon True, 25, was found in the charred rubble. Firemen said the $20,000 blaze was started by a gas explosion in the basement.

True's wife Judith, 20, told police she was awakened by the blast and roused her husband. Carrying the son Kevin Leon, 8 weeks old they attempted to escape by the stairs but were driven back by the heat.

"My husband cleared glass fragments from the window and I dropped Kevin to some men below," she related. "The men urged us to jump and said they would catch us. But Vernon said he was too heavy and would go to a porch window to get out. I jumped and they caught me."

Members of the football team at nearby Millikin University caught Mrs. True and her son without injury. True apparently was overcome as he attempted to reach another window.

Algerian Leads Featherweight Challengers

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) Cherif Hamia, a clever curly-haired Algerian, leads the pack of challengers snapping at the world featherweight title now that Sandy Saddler has been retired.

The National Boxing Association hopped into the fray last night when Fred Saddy, secretary, said in Milwaukee the winner of the Cista of New York would be recognized as new champion.

The New York State Athletic Commission is expected to come up with some sort of a formula, involving the leading contenders when the medical report on Saddler is digested.

Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico, recently beaten by Gil Cadill of San Francisco, probably will be in the midst of the scramble. Saddy said Berrios, who had been No. 2 in both NBA and Ring ratings, was dropped to third behind Costa after his defeat by Cadill.

According to Saddy's formula, Hamia and Costa would have to fight an agreement with the NBA to defend the newly-won title within 90 days after their bout against the man designated as leading challenger by the NBA.

Hamia, outpointed Costa in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder, March 30, 1956 on a split decision.

In a June 15 match in the Garden, Hamia won a unanimous decision over Berrios who was dropped for the first time in his career in the fourth round.

Hamia's other American start, May 4, resulted in a victory over Ike Chestnut at Washington on a divided decision.

Other Side of Bogart's True Nature

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Postscript on Bogart—

The story of Humphrey Bogart shouldn't be closed without a final chapter on his basic nature. The character of the grouchy, unsentimental needer, which he created both in public and private, was only the external aspect of his life.

He had feelings, though he stoutly denied any tendency to sentiment. No actor could be as accomplished as he was and not understand emotion.

Perhaps the reason for this tough mask could be found in his boyhood. His father was a successful New York doctor. His mother was even more famed as an illustrator.

"I admired my mother, but I can't really say that I loved her," Bogart reflected in later years. Maud Humphrey Bogart was devoted to her own career and gave scant notice to the rearing of her two daughters and son. She was conservative and socially minded, while Dr. Bogart was a liberal who liked boating, fishing and plain people.

It was only natural that Humphrey grew into a rebel. He was shunted off to boarding schools and was expelled from one of them for "uncontrollable high spirits."

These high spirits were predominant in his life up until his marriage to Lauren Bacall. Though he remained an intellectual rebel, a happy marriage and fatherhood appeared to calm him down. He seemed to find the security which he lacked from boyhood.

"Bogie's insecurity was what made him a big drinker," his wife once observed. "He was egged on by certain individuals who wanted to bring him to their level. Now he has learned he can go into people's homes and be accepted as an individual."

Only (Betty) Miss Bacall observed him with his guard down. She recalled two occasions when she saw him cry. Once was when she was meeting him in New York before their marriage. She was delayed by a press conference and he telephoned her bitterly. "You actresses are all alike — your career comes above everything."

But when she walked to his hotel room, he started crying. She saw him cry again the first time he saw their son Stephen in his schoolroom.

Perhaps the best description of Bogart's unique function in Hollywood was in John Huston's eloquent eulogy:

"In each of the fountains of Versailles there is a pipe which keeps all the camp active, otherwise they would grow overfat and die. Bogie took rare delight in performing a similar function in the fountains of Hollywood."

"Pretensions crumpled under his attack. Yet his victims seldom bore him any malice, and then they did, not for long. His shafts were fashioned only to stick into the outer layer of complacency, and not to penetrate through to the region of the spirit where real injuries are done."

Recently a group of Hollywood observers was sitting around and trying to figure who could inherit the colorful mantle of Bogart. Among those mentioned: Frank Sinatra, Marlon Brando, Mike Todd; Huston himself. None seemed to really qualify.

The truth is that Bogart can never be replaced.

Scene under the glass dome shows an artillery train of the French army of 1870 passing through a village. Postage stamps at lower left give a clue to the size of the tiny figures of horses, men and cannon. Although beautifully detailed, they are only three millimeters high.

Nashville Schools Told to Comply

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The attorney for the city school board will advise the board to comply with a federal court order to desegregate city schools.

Federal Judge William E. Miller yesterday approved the board's plan for desegregating first grade classes next fall but ordered the board by Dec. 31, to outline its plans for complete desegregation.

Edwin Hunt, attorney for the board, said, "We are gratified that the judge has sustained the gradual transition plan including the system of transfers. I shall advise compliance with the court's instruction to furnish by Dec. 31 a complete schedule for desegregation."

Miller approved five points of the board's six-point plan, which provides for voluntary student transfers where students are required to attend classes with a majority of another race.

The sixth point, which he did not accept, provided for the board's instruction committee to study the problem and recommend by the end of the year the time and number of grades to be desegregated in the next step.

Nashville's "gradual" school desegregation plan was submitted in answer to a suit filed by parents of 21 Negro and two white children seeking admission to segregated schools.

The plan as submitted to Miller provided for:

Abolition of compulsory racial segregation in first grades of city schools next fall.

A plan of school zoning based on location of school buildings and the latest scholastic census without reference to race.

First-graders to attend the school designated for the zone in which the student resides.

Application for transfer of first-graders from the school in their zone to another when made in writing by the student's parents or guardians.

Miller refused to issue an injunction sought by the 21 Negro children to erase all racial school segregation here immediately.

No village in England is more than eighteen miles from a railroad.

available immediately.

Hot Springs firemen said the blaze apparently started from a wood-burning stove.

The service station and general store were operated by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strachner who lived in the building. The structure was owned by E. M. Brown of Perrine, Ark.
